

A panoramic view of the London skyline reflected in the water, featuring the Houses of Parliament and Big Ben. The image is a wide, horizontal strip showing a clear reflection of the city's architecture in a body of water. The sky is blue with scattered white clouds. The reflection is sharp and clear, mirroring the buildings and the sky above. The central part of the image shows the Houses of Parliament and Big Ben, which are the most prominent features. To the right, the London Bridge is visible, and to the left, the modern skyscrapers of the City of London are reflected. The overall scene is a classic representation of the London skyline from a low angle across the water.
